Savute Safari Lodge is situated along the Savute Channel, a fickle water source in a remote area hosting large numbers of wildlife. Savute has Africa's second-largest summer zebra migration, typically occurring from November to December and again from February to April, depending on the rains. During this time, zebras journey from the northern rivers to the rain-fed grasslands and filled waterholes in the park's southwest. This migration attracts a high concentration of predators, making it a must-see for visitors.

Guests can explore the Delta through mokoro trips in traditional dugout canoes, boat safaris to various lagoons and islands, and wilderness walks. These activities offer the chance to see wildlife such as sitatunga and lechwe antelope, crocodiles, hippos, and other big game.
